BROOMFIELD, Colo., Aug. 1, 2019 /PRNewswire/ -- Ball Corporation (NYSE: BLL) today reported, on a U.S. GAAP basis, second quarter 2019 net earnings attributable to the corporation of $197 million (including the net effect of after-tax charges of $22 million, or 6 cents per diluted share for business consolidation and other non-comparable costs) or 58 cents per diluted share, on sales of $3.0 billion, compared to $119 million net earnings attributable to the corporation, or 34 cents per diluted share (including the net effect of after-tax charges of $88 million, or 24 cents per diluted share for business consolidation and other non-comparable costs), on sales of $3.1 billion in 2018. Results for the first six months of 2019 were net earnings attributable to the corporation of $314 million, or 92 cents per diluted share, on sales of $5.8 billion, compared to $244 million net earnings attributable to the corporation, or 68 cents per diluted share, on sales of $5.9 billion for the first six months of 2018.

Ball's second quarter and year-to-date 2019 comparable earnings per diluted share were 64 cents and $1.13, respectively versus second quarter and year-to-date 2018 comparable earnings per diluted share of 58 cents and $1.09, respectively.

Results reflect the sale of the company's U.S. steel food and steel aerosol business effective July 31, 2018. References to volume data represent units shipped in respective periods. Details of comparable segment earnings, business consolidation activities and other non-comparable items can be found in the notes to the unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements that accompany this news release.

"Strong demand trends in both our metal beverage packaging and aerospace businesses continue. During the quarter, rising global beverage can demand driven by continued specialty can growth from new product introductions by our customers and initial efforts by existing customers to shift established brands to aluminum packaging, resulted in tight supply conditions for specialty cans and higher short-term costs to serve growth, particularly in North and South America. Overall global volumes were up nearly 5 percent driven by a 13 percent increase in global specialty volumes. As we look forward in the near term, recent specialty can manufacturing line speed ups across our existing global plant network will allow us to keep pace with our customers' needs for infinitely recyclable aluminum packaging," said John A. Hayes, chairman, president and chief executive officer.

"As we look out over the next 12 to 36 months, higher than expected growth in our global beverage container businesses will require additional investment and, when combined with recently negotiated contracts and our aerospace technologies being leveraged across multiple customer platforms, the stage is set for an exciting multi-year period of growth, innovation and disciplined capital allocation for our company."

Beverage Packaging, North and Central America

Beverage packaging, North and Central America, comparable segment operating earnings for the second quarter 2019 were $141 million on sales of $1.3 billion compared to $157 million on sales of $1.2 billion in the second quarter 2018. For the first six months, comparable segment operating earnings were $259 million on sales of $2.4 billion compared to $270 million on sales of $2.3 billion during the same period in 2018.

Mid-single digit volume growth during the quarter was more than offset by approximately $35 million of previously disclosed unfavorable U.S. aluminum scrap rates and incremental costs to serve strong specialty can growth from newly commissioned production lines.

In the second half of 2019, continued volume growth, net fixed cost savings, lower start-up costs, mix and improved aluminum can sheet availability are expected to add significantly to results. Beyond 2019, favorable contractual terms, customers' growth projections for specialty cans and manufacturing efficiencies on new assets will drive year-over-year improvement.

Beverage Packaging, South America

Beverage packaging, South America, comparable segment operating earnings for the second quarter of 2019 were $65 million on sales of $377 million, compared to $66 million on sales of $379 million during the same period in 2018. For the first six months, comparable segment operating earnings were $133 million on sales of $818 million compared to $164 million on sales of $838 million during the same period in 2018.

Consistent with last quarter, low-teens segment volume growth was unable to offset fully the previously disclosed conclusion of the third-party end sales agreement as part of the Rexam acquisition. Industry beverage can demand in South America, particularly in Brazil, remains strong as beer customers continue to shift packaging mix from returnable glass to aluminum cans and overall consumption of alcohol and non-alcoholic products improved. The company's new beverage can manufacturing plant in Paraguay is scheduled to begin production in late 2019. As we look forward, year-over-year performance is expected to accelerate as we cycle out of difficult comparisons.

Beverage Packaging, Europe

Beverage packaging, Europe, comparable segment operating earnings for the second quarter of 2019 were $87 million on sales of $715 million, compared to $75 million on sales of $703 million in the second quarter 2018. For the first six months, comparable segment operating earnings were $151 million on sales of $1.4 billion compared to $135 million on sales of $1.3 billion during the same period in 2018.

Second quarter segment earnings reflect high single-digit can demand growth across Europe offset by euro earnings translation. Segment volume was driven by packaging mix shift to cans in the water, carbonated soft drink and beer categories and mid-teens growth for energy drinks. New lines in the company's existing Widnau, Switzerland, and Belgrade, Serbia, facilities that began production in January were running at full capacity during the quarter.

Positive volume momentum continues as certain customers continue to adjust a portion of their packaging filling assets to aluminum beverage packaging from single-serve plastics, particularly in Northern Europe.

Aerospace

Aerospace comparable segment operating earnings for the second quarter 2019 were $38 million on sales of $379 million, compared to $24 million on sales of $290 million in the second quarter 2018. For the first six months, comparable segment operating earnings were $68 million on sales of $707 million compared to $49 million on sales of $554 million during the same period in 2018.

During the quarter, NASA's Green Propellant Infusion Mission (GPIM), built by Ball, was successfully launched, fully commissioned and is currently performing beyond expectations. Program execution remains strong across the business and year-to-date the company hired approximately 600 people with an additional 600 employees expected to be hired by year end. To serve continued momentum, additional infrastructure growth capital will be deployed in the second half of 2019 and throughout 2020. Contracts already won, but not yet booked into current contracted backlog is $4.8 billion. Quarterly year-over-year segment earnings improvement will continue throughout 2019 and beyond.

Non-reportable

Year-over-year results in non-reportable reflect the dilutive impact of the July 31, 2018, sale of the U.S. steel food and steel aerosol business partially offset by low-single digit volume growth in the company's retained global aluminum aerosol business driven by demand for personal care aluminum aerosol packaging. Additional businesses supporting non-reportable include aluminum beverage can manufacturing operations in AMEA and Asia. Despite the previously announced Chinese asset sale, non-reportable results are expected to improve year-over-year in the second half.

Outlook

"The company's financial position is strong. We have ample financial flexibility to accelerate disciplined growth investments and return significant value to shareholders," said Scott C. Morrison, senior vice president and chief financial officer.

"Our long-term growth outlook continues to develop at a rate higher than we originally anticipated. While in the short term, we have experienced growing pains relative to certain costs, we are deploying capital in our businesses to capture this growth, including but not limited to the further build out of our aerospace manufacturing facilities, a new multi-line facility in Brazil that is secured by multi-year contracts, new beverage can lines in our Rome, Georgia, and Fort Worth, Texas, facilities, as well as additional line speed ups and conversions in North America and Europe. Our 2019 financial goals originally laid out in mid-2016 remain largely intact, and we expect to exceed our long-term 10 to 15 percent diluted earnings per share growth goal during 2019 and over the next several years," Hayes said.
